MODERN LANGUAGES AND CULTURE (L-11)

Course Director

The undergraduate programme in Modern Languages and Culture (L-11) aims to equip graduates with an intercultural education in response to the needs of contemporary, social and professional society, with particular attention to relations between Europe and the rest of the world. The three study plans available allow students to build their own customised study plan by taking the 19 exams of the three-year course in the linguistic-cultural areas that interest them the most: the degree course offers three-year or two-year programmes in French, English, Portuguese, Spanish, German, Arabic, Chinese and Russian (the courses include literature exams and philology exams). Students can then expand their competences with general and Italian linguistics, contemporary history, digital humanities, economics and law.

Interdepartmental Master's Degree

Coordinator

Professor Patrizia Mania
patrizia.mania@unitus.it

The second cycle inter-class degree course in Archaeology and History of Art aims at providing students an interdisciplinary course and make them experts in the archaeological and historical-artistic heritage. Starting from their existing knowledge of different issues related to the cultural heritage, students will acquire theoretical, historical and critical-methodological competences in the different areas and chronological contexts related to art development. Students will also acquire skills related to the conservation, management, promotion and protection of the archaeological and historical artistic heritage and of the institutions working in this area. The course offers two options: the archaeological option and the historical-artistic option.

SINGLE-CYCLE DEGREE COURSE

LAW (LMG-01)

Course Director

Professor Mario Savino
mario.savino@unitus.it

The second level degree course in Law offers a solid, comprehensive and balanced foundation in law, with the aim of training the future country leaders in the industrial, governmental organisations, professional and research sectors.

In particular, this degree course aims at:

giving students an interdisciplinary legal training that is focussed on Europe and has an international perspective;

providing students a good institutional preparation combined to a didactic methodology that strengthens analysis and case-study thanks to the cooperation of professionals who already work in different sectors (judges, lawyers, public administrators; directors of the legal offices of small and medium-sized businesses and more).

The course promotes qualified and innovative research in the field of socio-historic sciences and cultural heritage exploring the history of human societies and cultural production both tangible and intangible, and specifically artistic, spanning the period from antiquity to contemporary times. The comprehension of historical and archival sources, archaeological testimonies and artistic expression requires their placement in a landscape marked by evidence, memories and legacy, while making use of diagnostic disciplines and information technologies. A PhD in Historical and Heritage Sciences enables students to carry out research at Italian and foreign universities, but it will also enable them to assume positions with public and private institutes, restoration institutes, museums, research institutes, publishing houses, documentation and cataloguing centres. The skills acquired can be an additional qualification for employment in journalism, public communication and cultural action.

EXTRACURRICULAR TRAINING

(Internships)

Coordinator

Professor Luigi Principato

lorincipato@principatoporraro.it

Apart from the usual training courses, which include legal training in law firms, the University of Tuscia offers law graduates the opportunity to gain some knowledge of the job market by taking part in extracurricular training programmes (internships). New graduates have a wide choice: the existing internship programmes allow them to acquire work experience in state-run organisations, courts, independent authorities, companies working in traditional sectors and new technologies and law firms.
